Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Danner's Pocket Guide Book of the Battle-Field of Gettysburg, and History of the Battle In June, 1803; the army of Northern Virginia, divided into three corps under Longstreet, Ewell, and A. P. Hill, commanded by General Lee. crossed the Potomac at Williamsport and Shepherdstown and marched into Pennsylvania; a part going as far as Carlisle, the remainder halting at Chambersburg. The Union army, under General Hooker, had in the meantime crossed the river at Edwards Ferry and headed towards Frederick City, Md. On June 27th, Hooker having been refused the use of some ten thousand men they not needed in Harper's Ferry, tendered his resignation, which was accepted - General Meade succeeding to the command. On the morning of July 1st, Hill, whose corps was in the advance six miles from Gettysburg, learned that Gettysburg was occupied by a Union force. Sending back to urge Longstreet to hasten his March, he moved on. In the meanwhile, Reynolds, who was in command of that portion of the Union army, had sent out a cavalry...
